ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I should like to express my thanks to the following: Jon at Eyelevel Books for suggesting that I write the book in the first place and for his subsequent encouragement and patience; to Diane Cope for her delightful drawings; to John Hackett for his suggestions and for proof-reading; to Shiela Hodges and Jake Chambers for checking some of the information. For their valued support in this project I must also thank the veteran professional actor Bill Maynard and the Chairman of the Independent Theatre Council, Gavin Stride, who are both great advocates of amateur participation in the arts. I must also mention the actors and directors, both amateur and professional with whom, over the years, I have enjoyed the happiest of times and from whom I learned so much. Finally my thanks must go to my family who allowed me time and space, not only to pursue my interests in drama, but also to produce this book.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Ann Moore has been involved with drama for more than fifty years, experiencing most aspects of the art, from acting to stage management, props to directing.

Working with both amateurs and professionals, she has acted in more than fifty plays, from Alan Ayckbourn and Agatha Christie to Shakespeare and Arnold Wesker.

She has directed regularly for the last thirty years – and still does – and has taught drama to Secondary School pupils and adults.

She is an active member of two Performing Arts groups, one of which is based in a professional theatre, and she recently established a thriving drama society in her local community.
